

Father's Day Gift Guide 2011

Don't have any idea what to get your dad for Father's Day? You've come to the right place. Here are our suggestions of great gear. Photo Gallery by John Burgman

It may not be the largest or most expensive gift in the history of Father's Day, but if your Dad enjoys being outside in the hot summer months, he'll appreciate a few packages of Cool Off towelettes. The single-use cloth wipes use natural ingredients (including Aloe Vera, Glycerin, Chamomile extract, and other botanicals and herbs) to provide a moisturizing and "cooling" sensation when applied to the skin. Quick, lightweight, great for cooling off the core on sweltering days in the field. ($10; thequickchill.com)
